

LYCIAN COAST YACHT RALLY

16 September - 02 October 2011

The Lycian coast of Turkey from Marmaris to Antalya is a coast of limitless fascination and astonishing beauty, with huge dramatic mountains rising 2,000 metres, above rocky headlands, idyllic beaches and sheltered bays.

Day temperatures will still be in the high 20's, the water temperature about 25, the wind will follow us as we travel south east. The waves of Northern Europeans will have receded but the local merchants and restaurateurs will still be happy to see us.

For a contrast we will visit the Greek Island of Kastellorizo off the port of Kas and here you will be able to reflect with the locals as they talk about their Australian cousins who will be likely to live in Sydney or Melbourne.
